

Satellite Radio has become an important tool in my life. In addition to providing me with a multitude of entertainment choices, it has now provided valuable information regarding traffic and weather. I live in the most densely populated state in our Union. As the population grows, so does the automobile traffic. Now, there are plenty of local broadcast stations that offer these reports, but you have to wait for them. First they must offer a politically biased news story, or they have to play awful music, or they have to perform racial and sexually offensive humor, or other immoral acts that corrupt minds. Satellite Radio provides these reports immediately. Also, with our current terrorist threat level, these services could be particularly useful in the event of an attack, providing valuable safety information to the public.

Tell the NAB that if they want me to listen to their stations, that they should provide better quality programming with diverse formats. Their inability to provide quality broadcasting has forced me to pay for satellite service, rather than listen to free programming.
